I. Introduction

1. By letter of 28 April 2023, the Chairman of the Monitoring Committee of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe requested an opinion of the Venice Commission on Article 49 of the Constitution of France, and the established practice allowing the government to force the adoption of a bill without a vote in the National Assembly, unless the latter adopts a motion of censure. This request was made within the framework of the regular periodic reviews by the Parliamentary Assembly of the compliance of the obligations entered into upon their accession to the Council of Europe by member states.
2. Mr Nicos Alivizatos, Mr Richard Barrett, Ms Paloma Biglino, Ms Marta Cartabia, Mr Philip Dimitrov, Mr Christoph Grabenwarter and Mr Dan Meridor acted as rapporteurs for this opinion.
3. On 22 and 23 May 2023, a delegation of the Commission composed of Ms Biglino and Messrs Alivizatos, Barrett, Dimitrov and Meridor, accompanied by Ms Simona Granata-Menghini, Director and Secretary of the Commission, travelled to Paris and held meetings with representatives of the National Assembly (both the majority and the opposition) and of the Senate, with the Minister in charge of the relations with the parliament, with the Secretary General of the Government, and with the Secretary General of the Constitutional Council. The Commission is grateful to the French authorities for the excellent organisation of this visit. On 7 June, the Commission received some observations from an association.
4. In the light of the very limited time available for the preparation of this opinion, it was decided to proceed with an interim opinion at this stage.
5. This opinion was prepared on the basis of comments by the rapporteurs and the results of the meetings on 24 and 25 May 2023. It was examined at the meeting of the Sub-Commission Democratic Institutions on 8 June 2023. Following an exchange of views with Mr Thor Godmez, Representative, Secretary General of the French Government, it was adopted by the Venice Commission at its 135th Plenary Session (Venice, 9-10 June 2023).

the opinion and background

Submission to the Venice Commission on the established practice of article 49.3 of the French Constitution

August 17, 2023

○ The Venice Commission published its opinion on Article 49 of the French constitution and its established practice on the 13th of June 2023. The Commission emphasizes several worries it has concerning this article which allows a bill to be adopted without a vote of the lower house of the French Parliament and by engaging the government's responsibility.

○ ASSEDEL wishes to share its own analysis of the issues concerning this mechanism and it submitted a report enlightening four main issues: the combination of this article with other mechanism of rationalized parliamentarism, its inconsistency with Article 6 of the Déclaration des Droits de l'Homme of 1789, the importance to notice the distinction between “constitutionality” of a procedure and its democratic legitimacy, and finally, the weakness of the motion of censure.

Submission of observations to the Venice Commission on the Independence of the Judiciary in Netherlands

October 3, 2023

○ ASSEDEL closely follows the Venice Commission's Opinion No. 1138\2023, which focuses on the independence of the judiciary in the Netherlands. ASSEDEL is of the opinion that this independence is the most significant barrier for liberties in democratic countries, and submits this letter to the Venice Commission in which it expresses its views on the subject.

ASSEDEL informed the

Commissioner for Human Rights

Dunja Mijatovic with a letter

November 28, 2023

○ ASSEDEL draws the Commissioner's attention to the recent and worrisome 're-organization operations' against the Gülen movement members in Türkiye. In this context, the letter detailed the operations carried out in violation of many ECtHR jurisprudence, most notably the Yalçinkaya Grand Chamber judgment. The Commissioner was urged to call on the Turkish authorities to put an end to the unlawful crackdown and take all necessary measures.

EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS

ASSEDEL is a human rights advocacy group that has been actively engaged in various initiatives related to the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR). Among its activities, it provides representation to individual petitioners, drafts petitions on request, requests interim measures in cases of refoulement and participates in meetings with NGOs and litigators at the ECtHR. Additionally, it raises awareness on human rights through social media, and provides legal advice and translation services to facilitate accessibility for legal practitioners and applicants. Furthermore, it reports on the execution of judgments rendered by the ECtHR to contribute to the development of national legislation of Member States.

Ordinary applications

○ In 2023 ASSEDEL intervened in the submission of 9 applications concerning 13 applicants, either by drafting the entire application form for submission by the applicants themselves, or as the applicants' representative.

4 of the 9 applications concerned refoulement practices from the Schengen area, which falls within ASSEDEL's remit.

Decision on interim measure

On 22 June 2023, the Court (the duty judge) decided, in the interests of the parties and the proper conduct of the proceedings before it, to indicate to the Government of Greece, under Rule 39, that the applicants should not be removed from Greece and be provided with food, water and adequate medical care as needed until further notice.

Request for interim measures in case of refoulement (Rule 39)

○In a significant legal development, the European Court of Human Rights has taken action on ASSEDEL's applications for interim measures. The Court has instructed the Greek government to refrain from deporting the applicants who have been subjected to pushback practices in Greece in two different decisions on two different dates (27 March and 22 June 2023). In addition to that, another decision on 13 June 2023, under Rule 39, is aimed at protecting the rights of individuals, amongst whom are 56 asylum seekers, including children. The ECtHR's ruling underscores the importance of safeguarding vulnerable groups and ensuring that their requests for asylum are duly processed within the legal framework.

In 2023, ASSEDEL lodged 12 applications for interim measures against Greece, Bulgaria and Switzerland, on behalf of 158 applicants in distress at the borders of the European Union or concerned by an expulsion decision.

In 3 cases out of 12, the Court granted interim measures prohibiting the return of the persons concerned and ordering their protection. For the rest of the cases, 5 of them resulted in ordering of investigative measures while the other 4 cases were dismissed.

Submission as a Third-party Intervention

○ For years, Greece has been accused of pushing back asylum seekers. It is in this context that the European Court of Human Rights has communicated a case concerning two asylum seekers, including a Franco-Turkish national with the right to free movement in Greece, to the Greek government. ASSEDEL, authorized to intervene as a third party in the above-mentioned case, focuses in its submission on the characterization of the alleged violations.

Submission of our comments and recommendations to the ECtHR regarding the forthcoming amendment to Rule 28 of the Rules of Court

○ Upon the invitation received from the Registrar of the Court, Ms Marialena Tsirli, ASSEDEL submits its comments and recommendations on the envisaged amendment to Rule 28 of the Rules of Court, which is proposed to introduce the recusal mechanism for all forms of composition of the Court.

Participation to the round table intituled "The rule of law and the role of the CJEU: Frontex on trial"

○ Because of its particular interest in the issue of refoulement/pushback, ASSEDEL was invited to the round table aimed at strategic litigation against refoulement practices in Europe and cooperation between civil society actors in this area.

○ This round table was organised by the Heinrich-Böll-Stiftung European Union and Front-LEX foundations. ASSEDEL participated in ECtHR's Meeting with NGOs and Litigators on 11th and 12th October 2021

○ The European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) held bi-annual meetings with litigators and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) on October 11th and 12th this year. The human rights advocacy group ASSEDEL participated in the meetings and supported the ECtHR and its role in upholding civil liberties and fundamental human rights.

Distribution of a monthly Newsletter on the Court

○ To raise awareness on human rights, ASSEDEL publishes a monthly newsletter on the Court; recent jurisprudence, important cases communicated, etc.

Consultation by responding to various questions asked by professionals and applicants

○ When asked about issues related to the Convention law, ASSEDEL provides detailed responses to those interested in order to avoid any potential mistakes in the matter, which would result in the loss of the right to individual petition for victims. So far, ASSEDEL has been able to provide legal advice at least fifty consultation request. These consultations encompass mainly ; follow-up of applications, advice on legal argumentation, and various communications with the Court such as applicants' change of address.

Translation of judgments and important texts to facilitate accessibility by both legal practitioners and applicants

○ ASSEDEL translates important judgments of the Court and texts related to the procedure for submission to the Court into languages other than the official languages of the Council of Europe. In this regard, a series of documents and judgments have been translated and then published on the official sites of the Court; HUDOC and echr.coe.in.

LEGAL AID SERVICE FOR MIGRANTS

A SSEDEL is committed to ensuring the defense of vulnerable migrants who have encountered various difficulties in the exercise of their rights. In order to defend the migrants' rights in the field, ASSEDEL launches an assistance project for the procedures before French administrative authorities; OFPRA and OFII etc.

The project will work to provide advice and guidance to vulnerable persons, and resort to appropriate legal remedies if necessary.

What have we done so far?

Until the end of 2023, as part of our project, the work carried out is as following :

Our work in the area of legal aid takes a variety of forms, principally legal and social support.

In this respect, we have dealt with a number of requests (non-exhaustive list):

- by more than 40 people, in connection with asylum procedures; drafting of statements, third-party intervention, communication with lawyers,
- by 6 people, in connection with removal procedures; placement in a transit zone, refusal of entry, OQTF, etc.,
- by 22 people, on questions relating generally to the rights of foreign nationals; marriage, obtaining visas, naturalization, regularization apart from asylum, etc.
- by 7 people, in connection with various civil and criminal legal proceedings,
- by 26 people, about access to rights after regularization,
- by 11 people, in particular with regard to access to education.

Why is the European Pact on Migration and Asylum stalled?

October 2, 2023

○ In September 2020, the European Commission - led by Ursula von der Leyen - presented the European Pact on Migration and Asylum. Designed to replace the Dublin III system, the new pact was intended to provide a more coherent solution to migratory flows into the EU. Yet, 3 years on, the Pact still lacks unanimity, and the EU Council is still seeking common ground with the Parliament. Between disagreements among member states and criticism from NGOs, we take stock.

The right to an effective remedy before an impartial judge: Civil society on hostile ground

December 1, 2023

○ Since 2019, students at Polytechnique (Saclay) have been in revolt against energy giant Total. The company has long wanted to set up a research and innovation center near the campus. 1 Between illegal interest-taking and non-compliance with environmental standards, Total Energie has aroused and continues to arouse the ire of several associations, including Sphinx, a Polytechnique student association dedicated to defending environmental issues. 2 But that is no longer the heart of the matter. By taking legal action, the Polytechnique students had no intention of opening Pandora's box and facing other serious legal issues that infringe freedom of association and the right to a fair trial.

Illuminating the Directive on Combating Violence Against Women and Domestic Violence in Europe

November 22, 2023

On November 22, 2023, at 17:00 CET, ASSEDEL, in collaboration with the second vice president of the European Parliament, Ms. Pina Picierno, proudly hosted a momentous movie screening event and a cocktail reception at the European Parliament in Strasbourg, in the distinguished setting of Room “Louise Weiss N 2.1.”

ASSEDEL, a leading advocate committed to combating violence against women and domestic violence, embarked on a journey to shine a bright light on the vital “Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council on combating violence against women and domestic violence.” The event was not just a screening; it was a powerful initiative aimed at raising awareness and understanding of this pivotal Directive, which holds the key to eradicating violence against women and domestic violence within the European Union.

At the heart of this event was the screening of the poignant documentary, “Mimosa.” This film masterfully conveyed the profound importance of the Directive and its potential to transform the lives of women across Europe. It served as a poignant reminder that our commitment to combating violence against women and domestic violence must remain steadfast, and it urged us all to persist in our efforts.

ASSEDEL takes immense pride in organizing this event, which not only heightened awareness of the Directive but also contributed significantly to the ongoing endeavor to safeguard the rights and well-being of women in Europe. We extend our heartfelt gratitude for the unwavering support and collaboration of Ms. Pina Picierno and the European Parliament in making this event a resounding success. Together, we take a solemn pledge to work tirelessly toward a Europe where violence against women and domestic violence are consigned to history, and every woman can live a life free from fear and harm.
